The Auch of NewBridge

Helping People Move Forward

Dear Friend,

Through counseling, housing and education, NewBridge Services supports people at all stages of life. We're here to heal, to teach, to comfort, to inspire, and to lighten burdens, helping thousands of children, adults and seniors each year. In our 2022 annual report, we've shared stories of three families across the life spectrum whose experiences testify to the power of NewBridge.

Last year marked the 10th anniversary of our Child and Family Services program. In 2012, New Jersey chose NewBridge for its expertise in children's mental health services to work with children who experienced neglect or abuse. Since then, we've helped 1,313 children, parents and other caretakers heal. We'll introduce you to Anthony, who greatly improved his parenting skills with support from CFS. Years later, he and his children are flourishing!

Struggles as a young adult can derail aspirations. NewBridge Jobs Plus graduate Crystal Stankevitch has come a long way since leaving high school at age 16. The certified medical assistant specializing in emergency medical care said NewBridge helped her find her professional niche.

NewBridge SAIL has helped seniors Mila and Luis Morales remain in their home. NewBridge arranges caregiver services for Luis, who has serious health issues, provides ongoing emotional support, and makes sure they have what they need.

We are proud to do this important work in our communities and grateful to our supporters who make it possible. NewBridge announced in 2022 we are joining forces with the health care organization Christian Health to ensure NewBridge's viability long into the future. Thank you to all who believe in the power of NewBridge!

Sincerely,

Michelle Borde

HIGHLIGHTS

"There are so many moments to cherish. I'm so proud of him!"

— Debbie Vazzano

"I cherish NewBridge. The program and staff guided me with the tools needed to blossom and achieve all the goals wanted."

— Crystal Stankevitch

Debbie Vazzano sends a photo of her son and grandchildren to NewBridge's Child and Family Services each year as a thank you for helping him become a better parent and regain custody of his son and daughter.

"They were really committed to getting the family back together," said Vazzano, who fostered her son's older two children for 13 months about five years ago.

During that time, Anthony Cerza only saw his children at supervised visits and family counseling sessions. First resentful, Cerza said he came to embrace therapy. "It was very good for me. I learned to be more patient, to take time and listen, and to accept help when I need it," the 34-year-old said.

Early on, his son, then age 5, called Cerza The Hulk, after the rage-powered superhero. "At first I thought he called me that because he saw me as strong, but then I understood he was a little afraid of me: I'd always had a bad temper," Cerza said. As they progressed in therapy, Anthony Jr. "started calling me Superman," Cerza said. "That really felt good." The counseling also helped strengthen Cerza's relationship with his mom, they both said.

Cerza is now engaged and a father of four. He bought a home for his family and owns a landscaping business. He coaches Anthony Jr.'s football and baseball teams. While the children were in foster care, Cerza wrote songs to cope with his feelings. Now he and his 9-year-old daughter, Mia, write poetry together.

"I'm so proud of him!" Vazzano said. "Five years ago, I never thought he would be doing all these things with them," she said. "There are so many moments to cherish."

COUNSELING

- ✓ 1,327 people dealing with addictions, mental illness and other stressors received counseling. More than 94% of clients attained or made progress toward one or more of their goals.
- ✓ 214 abused and neglected children and their families learned skills and received support for improved family functioning.
- √ 380 seniors remained in their homes with support from NewBridge Senior Assistance for Independent Living (SAIL).
- ✓ 21 homebound seniors and 16 caregivers received in-home counseling through NewBridge@Home.
- ✓ 163 adults with severe and persistent mental illness participated in NewBridge's adult day treatment program. Eighty-seven percent made progress on at least one goal.

Crystal Stankevitch has found her professional calling, and she credits NewBridge Services' alternative education and career program with helping her onto the path. The 25-year-old mother of two is working in emergency medical care and pursuing a career in law enforcement, leaving the social and academic struggles she faced in middle school and high school far behind.

On her 16th birthday in 2014, a Friday, Stankevitch withdrew from her high school, and that Monday, she started classes at NewBridge Jobs Plus. Her reading level rose and her interpersonal skills vastly improved. The program included tours of colleges and mock interviews for job hunting. Within four months, she completed the program's requirements and earned her New Jersey high school diploma.

"I wanted better opportunities for my life, more than high school had to offer, and NewBridge gave me the opportunity to accomplish more goals I had in mind," she said. Stankevitch worked in child care while studying to become a certified medical assistant. She developed an interest in emergency medical care over the years, landing a job at a hospital emergency department, and most recently at one that handles psychiatric crises. Stankevitch may put her training to use in law enforcement. Urged by friends, she took the New Jersey law enforcement exam, and has been interviewing for positions.

"I cherish NewBridge. The program and staff guided me with the tools needed to blossom and achieve all the goals wanted," she said.

"I feel rejuvenated. NewBridge is very healthy for me!"

— Mila Morales

"The Holmes Family Foundation continues to support NewBridge Services, which has for six decades cared for society's most vulnerable. We want to help ensure NewBridge's future, so it is always here to help people in need."

— Bonnie Holmes

When Luis Morales suffered a massive heart attack on his postal route 22 years ago, his wife, Mila, became his primary caretaker. She has since tended her husband of 47 years through a heart transplant and numerous serious ailments.

In 2021, as she faced her own health problems, Mila Morales reached out for help to care for her husband. The Morris County Office on Aging, Disabilities & Veterans connected her with NewBridge Services, and the couple's support system took shape.

Adrienne Sauer, their first case manager with NewBridge Senior Assistance for Independent Living (SAIL), helped obtain 14 hours a week of caregiver services and medical equipment for Luis Morales through Veteran's Affairs.

"Adrienne went right into helping mode," said Mila Morales. She hadn't known her husband's two years in the Army during the Vietnam War qualified him for benefits.

Claudia Mattson took over as case manager when Sauer became Mila Morales' counselor. Mattson helped the couple secure a break on their heating bills, as well as another nine hours of caregiver services. When Mila Morales had to be hospitalized, Mattson assisted their 19-year-old granddaughter, Julianna, in applying for and receiving temporary 24-hour care for her grandfather.

"When we need help, Claudia springs into action," Mila Morales said, calling Mattson a hero. "All she needs is a cape!"

Through weekly counseling sessions with Sauer, "I found out I deserve to take care of myself, without guilt," the 65-year-old said. After each Zoom session, "I feel rejuvenated. NewBridge is very healthy for me!"

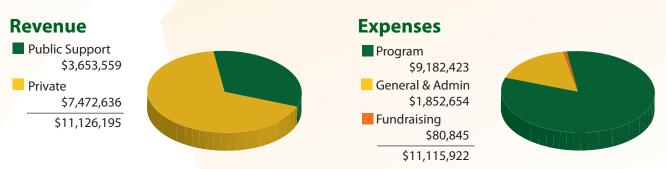

Mila and Luis Morales, 78, said they don't know what they would do without NewBridge SAIL. "Claudia and Adrienne are always right there for us, like family," she said.

HOUSING

- ✓ 105 people, many with special needs, resided in 84 units of affordable housing provided by NewBridge.
- √ 62 people lived in NewBridge's five group homes, with all residents making progress toward or attaining at least one of their goals related to mental health, physical health, socialization, and daily living activities.
- √ 77 people diagnosed with persistent and chronic mental illness received support services that allowed them to live on their own. Nearly all reported making strides in managing their mental health symptoms.
